Charley Weeghman and Joe Tinker are still uncertain about the player limit for the present season and are considerably up in the air as a result. Charles and Joe said they understood the Cubs were to be allowed to carry as many men as they wished through 1916.

President Tener and Sec'y Heydler of the National league have given an opinion that the Cubs can carry as many men as are desired, but that only 21 can be carried on the eligible list, ready for active duty.

That is no concession at all and will not benefit the Cubs. Men can be shifted from the eligible to the inactive list, but a fellow put on the inactive list must remain there ten days before returning to duty.

The matter is by no means settled and Weeghman and Tinker say it will not be considered settled until things are adjusted to their satisfaction. The matter will be carried up either to the board of directors of the league or to the national commission.

The parallel case of the St. Louis Browns in the American league will be cited in support of the contention of the Cub officials. The Browns and Sloufeds were amalgamated, but Fielder Jones is not compelled this season to conform to the 25-player limit in force in the younger organization.

Some magnates seem to think they have the Cubs in a corner and embarrassed and intend to put on the screws if possible. All of which is another indication that the baseball dove of peace is not yet a full-grown bird.

The game postponed yesterday will be played off May 31, when the Cards return here. It is an open date and means no double-header.

Pitcher Ad Brennan has been sold by the Cubs to Atlanta of the Southern league.

The Cubs are scheduled to play tomorrow in Pittsburgh, but the game and the two following may be postponed because of the street car strike in the Smoky city. Barney Dreyfuss says the Saturday game will be played, regardless of the street car situation.

The game postponed yesterday between Browns and White Sox will not be played off tomorrow, Cardinals being scheduled to exhibit in St. Louis. This means the Sox will journey to Dubuque for an exhibition and the postponement will be played off when the Sox next visit the mound city.

The postponement was unfortunate at this time, as the Rowland gang had caught the Browns in the midst of a terrific slump and the team is being revamped every day while Jones frantically tries to find a winning combination. His latest move is the benching of Tobin and Austin, Ward Miller going to right field and Deal back to third base.

Thursday the Sox will be home for a four-day stay, after which they will hike to parts east, meeting all the seaboard teams. They will not be
